Fighting Hunger Worldwide

Dear VT:

On behalf of Friends of the World Food Program (WFP), I would like to offer my sincerest thanks to you for your participation in the Hope is a Red Cup event, which was a success due in part to your support. Your gift of $116, received on 4/2/2010, will help provide nutrition and hope to the millions of individuals we serve.

As the United Nations' frontline agency against hunger, WFP saves lives every day by responding to emergencies like the recent earthquake in Haiti. The agency immediately launched an emergency operation, mobilizing all available resources and has now reached more than 4.3 million people through 16 distribution sites. As the lead logistics and telecommunications agency, WFP is opening up air, sea and land corridors in order to reach hundreds of thousands of Haitians when they are at their most vulnerable.

Many people in Haiti were already at risk of malnutrition prior to this disaster. Worldwide, nearly one in six people do not get enough food to be healthy and lead active lives. With over one billion people undernourished, hunger poses the number one risk to health worldwide – greater than AIDS, malaria and tuberculosis combined. However, hunger is solvable: we have enough food in the world to feed every man, woman and child. This year, WFP aims to provide food assistance to more than 100 million people in developing countries, and your support is essential to ensuring it reaches this goal.

We are very grateful for your support. Our combined efforts will help make a difference in the lives of so many devastated by hunger. Again, thank you for your generous gift.

Yours sincerely,

Richard Leach
Acting President and CEO

P.S. Don't forget to check if your employer will match this gift!
