How leadership is organized

The published leadership structure identifies national executive functions, local branch directors, and a National Youth Board. This demonstrates named responsibility across national coordination, local volunteer programs and youth engagement; it does not by itself establish the organization’s formal legal board composition or committee charters.

Branch leadership and local delivery

VT Seva publishes named branch directors for 24 U.S. locations, including Atlanta, Austin, Bay Area, Boston, Cary, Charlotte, Chicago, Cincinnati, Columbus, Connecticut, Dallas, Detroit, Houston, Maryland, Minneapolis, Nashville, New Jersey, North Jersey, Orlando, San Antonio, Seattle, St. Louis, Tampa and Virginia. Branch pages provide local volunteer, event and contact information.

National Youth Board

The official site lists regional youth representatives: Southeast — Yashna Chokkarapu; Midwest — Mahathi Duggirala; Southwest — Lokavya Marreddy; Northeast — Pranav Vanga; West Coast — Anushka Sharma; School Club Liaison — Kate Chirapornsuk.

Governance documentation for due diligence

The public website supports verification of organizational identity and leadership names. For formal grant due diligence, VT Seva should separately provide, when requested and authorized: current board roster and independence information; bylaws; conflict-of-interest and whistleblower policies; financial approval and internal-control procedures; IRS determination letter; most recent Form 990; and audited or reviewed financial statements if available. These documents were not verified from the public leadership page and are not represented here as completed or adopted.
